Alma Mater

Dear Sterling High School, we sing in Thy name,
Our Alma Mater, we proudly proclaim;
Built on a creed of faith and noble deed,
To mold our lives and send us forth that we may succeed.

A part of our lives, Thy creed will always be,
Our solemn vow, we pledge ourselves to Thee;
Our loyalty enduring faithfully,
Our Alma Mater, hail to Thee.

Sterling we hail Thee with love, joy, and pride,
The high and the mighty "Hawk" is our guide;
Your sons and daughters will ever sing Thy praise,
Maroon and Gold, our colors bold,
Dear Sterling High.

To a woman whose sense of humor brightens our days, whose witty sayings cheer us, we pay tribute. For the past ten years, we have viewed her dignified figure strolling gracefully up the halls of S.H.S. She has become a part of us and she is looked upon with respect. We take great pleasure in dedicating the 1962 Hawk to everyone's friend.

Mrs. Rosa M. Foust

Every pupil should ask himself from time to time the following questions: Why do I go to school? If remaining in school until graduation were left entirely with me to decide upon would I graduate? Statistics have shown that the amount of income a person receives is governed largely by the amount of formal education he has.

Is this the only justifiable reason for staying in school as long as I can? What are some rewards that I must endeavor to attain other than material ones? Am I doing my very best in all of my classes, or am I doing just enough to "get by"? Do I respect the rights of others? When I am tempted to think evil and immoral thoughts, do I have the courage and fortitude to immediately dispel them from my mind? Do I perform my tasks well, or must some-one "go over" the task assigned to me.

Earnestly asked and truthfully answered, the foregoing questions should tend to stimulate within each individual student a desire to analyze both objectively and subjectively the areas in which he is strong and also those areas where he apparently needs help from outside sources.

A full knowledge of one's self is a prerequisite to successful living, both now and in the future.

Yearbook Staff

Foreword

The Hawk is a traditional part of Sterling High School. Interpreted in terms of school ideas, its rugged strength and durability mean loyalty, high standards of conduct and service to the yearbook staff. May the Hawk be a lasting reminder of the noble qualities our symbol represents and a source of enjoyment throughout the years.

To our beloved instructors we say, "Thanks for your patience with the staff and for your gracious attitude toward making our HAWK a success."
